...STARRING IN THE SHOCKING FILM OF THE SEVENTIES FOR THE FIRST TIME ON THE INTERNATIONAL MARKET

As the high priests of the Beatnick movement, Andy Warhol, Jim Morrison & William Burroughs reached their climax, Barjol quarantined 200 actors, musicians and painters in the largest European studio and filmed them non-stop for 72 hours with 8 cameras.

Far before "Big Brother" we become the voyeurs of an incredible and realistic human show where the protagonists cross the lines of sex, drugs, and religion in an end-of-the-world decadent atmosphere.

« The originality of the subject, the beauty of the images, the breaking of all taboos, the impudence transfigured by art, make «WHAT A FLASH» an event in the cinema history and put BARJOL amongst the best of the best.»
ROGER PEYREFITTE (Author)

«There will be no remake of «WHAT A FLASH», nobody, not even BARJOL will do it again.
This is a unique film in the history of cinema. This film will never be forgotten.»
L'HUMANITE

« It's surprising that a Frenchman has made this film.
It reveals a powerful, realistic and visionary character.
This is a great human show.»
CLAUDE CHABROL (Director)
